

The Flavor Equation

The Science of Great Cooking Explained in More Than 100 Essential Recipes

Nik Sharma

Every time you cook, you're trying to hit just 6 notes: richness, brightness, depth, heat, saltiness, and sweetness. These are the flavors that make our food sing. When you cook—and eat—you rely on a variety of senses and feelings—taste, sight, aroma, sound, mouthfeel, and emotion—to perceive these sensations. In this groundbreaking cookbook from Nik Sharma, author of acclaimed cookbook SEASON and the award-winning A BROWN TABLE blog, we learn the simplest ways to play up any and all of these sensations for the most flavorful food. The compounds that cause these unique sensations are found in the simplest ingredients: lemons and limes, salt and pepper, pickles, cream, olive oil, and butter. These are the flavor-boosting building blocks on hand for splendid, simple cooking. Once home cooks learn how to evoke these sensations, they'll be able to make nearly anything delicious. THE FLAVOR EQUATION presents an in-depth exploration of the science of taste, with more than 100 illustrations for visual learners. Here, too, are 125 go-to recipes for favorite dishes—curries, one-pot vegetarian mains, soups—for cooks of all skill levels, with a photo of almost every recipe, in Nik's trademark evocative and moody style. This is a hefty, must-own cookbook—the next FOOD LAB or FLAVOR BIBLE—perfect for curious cooks of all levels who are learning the basics, need help of their class

Apple (Skin to the Core)

Eric Gansworth

How about a book that makes you barge into your boss's office to read a page of poetry from? That you dream of? That every movie, song, book, moment that follows continues to evoke in some way?

The term "Apple" is a slur in Native communities across the country. It's for someone supposedly "red on the outside, white on the inside."

Eric Gansworth is telling his story in APPLE (SKIN TO THE CORE). The story of his family, of Onondaga among Tuscaroras, of Native folks everywhere. From the horrible legacy of the government boarding schools, to a boy watching his siblings leave and return and leave again, to a young man fighting to be an artist who balances multiple worlds.

Eric shatters that slur and reclaims it in verse and prose and imagery that truly lives up to the word heartbreaking."

Elatsoe

Darcie Little Badger, illustrated by Rovina Cai

Imagine an America very similar to our own. It's got homework, best friends, and pistachio ice cream.

There are some differences. This America been shaped dramatically by the magic, monsters, knowledge, and legends of its peoples, those Indigenous and those not. Some of these forces are charmingly everyday, like the ability to make an orb of light appear or travel across the world through rings of fungi. But other forces are less charming and should never see the light of day.

Elatsoe lives in this slightly stranger America. She can raise the ghosts of dead animals, a skill passed down through generations of her Lipan Apache family. Her beloved cousin has just been murdered, in a town that wants no prying eyes. But she is going to do more than pry. The picture-perfect facade of Willowbee masks gruesome secrets, and she will rely on her wits, skills, and friends to tear off the mask and protect her family.

Darcie Little Badger is an extraordinary debut talent in the world of speculative fiction. We have paired her with her artistic match, illustrator Rovina Cai. This is a book singular in feeling and beauty.

The Way Past Winter

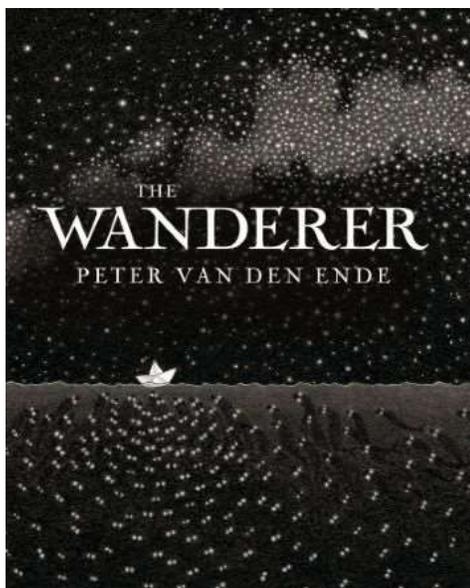

Kiran Millwood Hargrave

Mila, her sisters, and her brother Oskar live in a small forest cabin, surviving in a world gripped by frost and snow. When mysterious, fur-coated men show up on her doorstep, Mila and her family grant them shelter for the night. But in the morning, the men are gone—and they've taken Oskar with them. Determined to save her brother, Mila and her sisters set out on a mission to rescue him. But challenges await them at every turn: wolves with the speed of demons, tempestuous gold, an untrustworthy mage—and always the relentless, stinging freeze of winter. In this riveting adventure, award-winning and internationally acclaimed author Kiran Millwood Hargrave unleashes magic, an eternal winter, and one girl's unbreakable determination to reunite her family. Inspired by European folklore, this is a classic adventure story in the vein of Phillip Pullman, Anne Ursu, and Kelly Barnhill that evokes the best of the middle grade fantasy genre.

Kiran Millwood Hargrave is a bestselling author and winner of many prestigious awards for her books The Girl of Ink & Stars, The Island at the End of the World, The Mercies, and The Deathless Girl. She lives in Oxford, in the United Kingdom.

The Wanderer

Peter Van den Ende

Wonderfully strange and strangely wonderful, Peter Van den Ende's WANDERER is an epic dream captured in superbly meticulous detail."- Shaun Tan

As with Shaun Tan's THE ARRIVAL, it gives us collective goosebumps to introduce the singular talent and imagination of Peter Van den Ende to North America. Without a word, and with Escher-like precision, Van den Ende presents one little paper boat's journey across the ocean, past reefs and between icebergs, through schools of fish, swaying water plants, and terrifying sea monsters. The little boat is all alone, and while its aloneness gives it the chance to wonder at the fairy-tale world above and below the waves uninterrupted, that also means it must save itself when it storms. And so it does. We hope that readers young and old will find the strength and inspiration that we did in this quietly powerful story about growing, learning, and life's ups and downs."

The WANDERER is Peter Van den Ende's remarkable debut as a picture book artist. When he's not drawing, he works as a nature guide in the Cayman Islands. The beauty of the sea was his source of inspiration for his wonderful wordless story.

Thank You, Miyuki

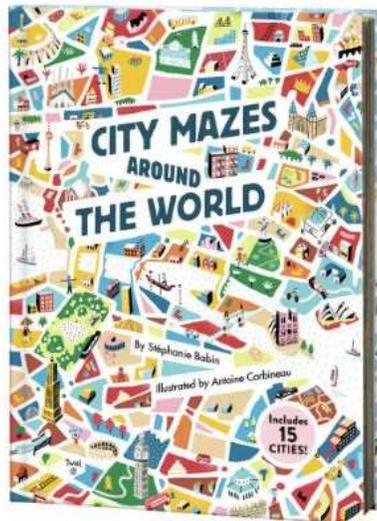

Roxane Marie Galliez, illustrated by Seng Soun Ratanavanh

Miyuki and her grandfather return in an enchanting intergenerational story enhanced by Seng Soun Ratanavanh's gorgeous Japanese-inspired illustrations. Miyuki's curiosity is piqued by her grandfather's morning meditation routine, and she is eager to learn this new skill. Her wise and patient grandfather first takes her on a walk in the garden. When do we start to meditate?" she asks repeatedly. Grandfather enjoys the warm sun and stops to smell a rose, inviting Miyuki to join him. Their walk in the garden, filled with many tender moments, heightens their gratitude for each other and for the world around them. Miyuki comes to understand that in the small acts of mindfulness throughout her day, she learned how to meditate."

Prize-winning writer, poet, and children's book author Roxane Marie Galliez has a doctorate in the history of ancient civilizations and traveled the Pacific Islands for several years as a researcher and journalist. She lives near Saint-Etienne, France.

A graduate of the School of Fine Arts in Paris, illustrator and painter Seng Soun Ratanavanh lives just outside of Paris, France.

City Mazes Around the World

Stephanie Babin, illustrated by Antoine Corbineau

From New York City to Tokyo and Berlin to Sydney, the streets of the 15 cities included in this book are filled with a fascinating showcase of local landmarks and awesome attractions. How will you get from the Brooklyn Bridge to Central Park in New York City? Or find your way to Topkapi Palace in Istanbul? Each spread is an engaging and challenging journey, and maze solvers have to look out for things or people that block their paths, like manga in Kyoto, dog walkers in San Francisco, and even bobbies in London! A great way to explore different cities, with a helpful answer key at the back of the book.

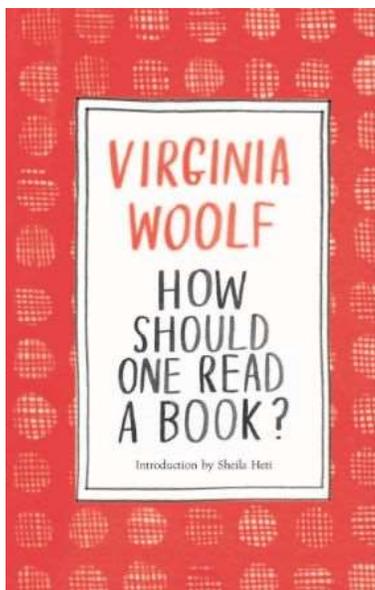

Stephanie Babin is an author of books for young children, particularly nonfiction and interactive titles. She lives in Paris, France.

Antoine Corbineau is a graduate of Camberwell College in London and the School of Decorative Arts in Strasbourg, France. A multi-disciplinary creator, he has worked for major design and advertising agencies all over the world. He lives in Nantes, France.

How Should One Read a Book?

Virginia Woolf

'Where are we to begin? How are we to bring order into this multitudinous chaos and so get the deepest and widest pleasure from what we read?'

Published for the first time as a standalone volume, Virginia Woolf's short, impassioned essay, How Should One Read a Book? celebrates the enduring importance of great literature. In this timeless manifesto on the written word, rediscover the joy of reading and the power of a good book to change the world.

One of the most significant modernist writers of the 20th Century, Virginia Woolf and her visionary essays are as relevant today as they were nearly one hundred years ago.

Features a new introduction by Sheila Heti.

How to Eat Your Christmas Tree

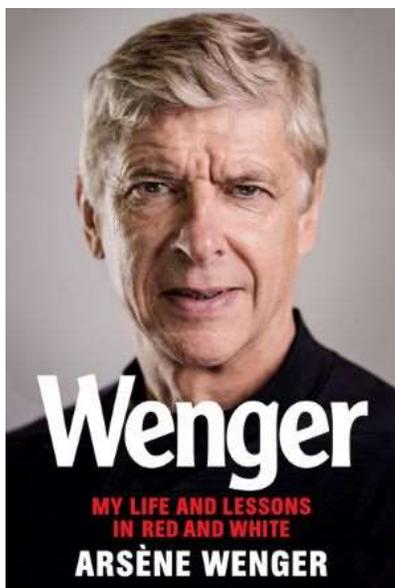

Delicious, innovative recipes for cooking with trees

Julia Geogallis

Evergreen trees are pillars of the winter - through extreme temperatures across the most bitter terrains, they stand tall and thriving, resilient in the face adversity. However, as the festive season draws to a close, these comforting conifers can often be found lining the streets, cast off and disused with wilted branches dotted across dustbins.

How to Eat Your Christmas Tree is a cookbook brought to you from the sold-out supper club of the same name, which explores the unsung edible heroes of our forests - the humble Christmas trees and their evergreen friends! As well as recipes for cooking with pine, fir and spruce this book also encourages reflection around food waste and resourcefulness in an age of deforestation and climate crisis and asks how we might be able to celebrate nature in an alternative way.

Julia Geogallis is an artisan baker who currently runs a nomadic microbakery called The Bread Companion, as well as being involved in a number of other food related projects such as her annual kitchen residency at the Designers on Holiday summer camp in Sweden and as a partner at Queimado Lisboa. Her most recent work and projects revolve around looking at food as a

Wenger

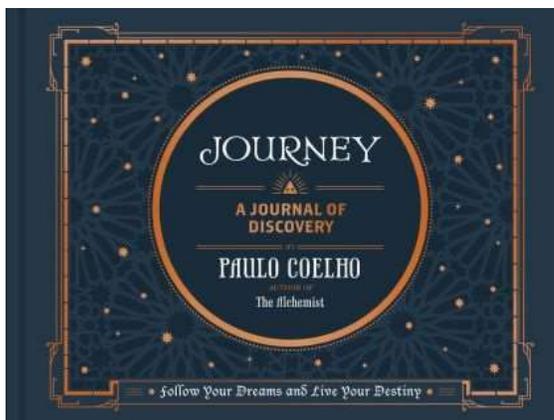

My Life and Lessons in Red and White

Arsene Wenger

With no less than thirteen books published about him in English to date, for the very first time, world-renowned, revolutionary soccer coach Arsene Wenger finally tells his own story. Wenger opens up about his life, sharing principles for success on and off the field with lessons on leadership, personal development, and management. Among the most successful soccer managers of all time, Wenger has won multiple championships, run one undefeated English Premier League campaign (the EPL currently has 34 million weekly US television viewers and is growing in popularity every year) and popularized the attacking approach and belief that the game should be entertaining. Wenger charts his extraordinary career, including his rise from obscurity in France and Japan to his 22 years at the helm of Arsenal Football Club, the unrest that led to his resignation in 2018, and his current role as Chief of Global Football Development for FIFA. Wenger offers studious reflections on the game and his groundbreaking approach to motivation, mindset, fitness, and the winning edge. A must-read for Arsenal fans, soccer fans, athletes, trainers, business leaders, and anyone seeking the tools for success in work and life.
