

ELI SASLOW

Rising Out of Hatred by Eli Saslow

A riveting tale of White Nationalist Derek Black, tapped as KKK leadership “heir apparent.” His father was a grand wizard, and his mother was once married to David Duke. Sharing their stance was all he knew, but things began to change when confronted at a liberal arts college with ideas that were in opposition to his own. Saslow impeccably describes Derek’s daily inner micro-adjustments; his long, slow slide to the left is a thing of beauty. A profound study in human nature, politics, racism, and family.
