David Grann

Who doesn't love Marla Frazee's Bossier Baby? He might have been the top man once, but in Frazee's new picturebook, The Bossier Baby (Beach Lane/S&S), we meet the new CEO in town - Boss Baby's even bossier new baby sister! Frazee's retro style and witty text took the first Baby book to the top of everyone's Best Of lists, as well as the Indie Bestseller list. In addition to books she writes and illustrates on her own, Marla Frazee has illustrated numerous books by other authors, and is a two-time Caldecott Honor winner. She lives in Pasadena, California, where she writes and draws in a lovely little studio in her backyard.

David Grann, author of the bestselling The Lost City of Z, uncovers a forgotten but shocking slice of American history in his forthcoming non-fiction thriller Killers of the Flower Moon (Doubleday/PRH). After oil was discovered on the Osage reservation in the 1920's, tribal members became the richest people per capita in the world. Then the murders started, first members of the Osage tribe, then those who dared investigate the crimes. Desperate, the Osage turned to the newly created FBI; this case became the FBI's first major homicide investigation. Grann is a staff writer for The New Yorker. Killers of the Flower Moon is scheduled for publication in April, 2017.

Eowyn Ivey

Alaskan writer and bookseller Eowyn Ivey's second novel The Bright Edge of the World (Little Brown, HBG) offers "An entrancing, occasionally chilling, depiction of turn-of-the-century Alaska..." Publishers Weekly (Starred Review). In Ivey's story, told through letters, journal entries and even vintage photographs, a vertex of the Indian Wars fights his way into Alaska's vast and untamed interior, while his wife, a pioneer in the new art of photography, waits behind. Eowyn Ivey's first novel, The Snow Child, was a finalist for the Pulitzer Prize, a New York Times (and PNBA) best-seller, and won a PNBA Book Award in 2013. She was raised in Alaska and continues to live there with her husband and two daughters. She worked for nearly a decade as a bookseller at independent Fireside Books in Palmer.

David Quammen

Helping to celebrate the 100th birthday of America's National Parks, award-winning author David Quammen takes readers on a breathtaking journey through our first and perhaps most iconic Park in Yellowstone: A Journey Through America's Park (National Geographic/PRH). Quammen captures this unique landscape in elegant and enlightening text accompanied by hundreds of beautiful photographs. He has published numerous books of science and natural history, including his 1986 PNBA Award-winning collection of essays, Natural Acts. Quammen has been a contributor to Outside, Harper's and National Geographic, among others. He lives in Bozeman, Montana with his wife and a family of large white dogs.
